

BUSINESSES: KNOW THE LAW WHEN THE GOVERNMENT COMES KNOCKING

When a government official shows up to fine or close your business because you will not force your employees or customers to comply with unlawful orders (mask wearing, social distancing, etc.), you have the following Constitutionally protected rights:

- A. 1st Amendment: Protects freedom of Religion for you and your customers.
- B. 4th Amendment: Protects your Property. 1) Your rights are your property. 2) Your physical business is also your property. The government cannot take your property without due process of law, and they cannot deny you the right to protect your property.

US Supreme Court Marbury v. Madison 1803: “A law repugnant to the Constitution is void.” It has no force of law, and can be ignored.

Mack Printz v. United States 1997: Justice Scalia wrote, “The Constitution protects us from our own best intentions.” Any code the government claims to pass “for our safety” cannot be upheld or enforced since it is outside the rule of law and governmental authority.

Therefore, inform the government official that you will sue them personally; their government status does not protect them if they fine, close your business, or arrest you. Under Title 18, U.S.C. Section 242, Deprivation of Rights Under Color of Law, it is a crime for a person acting under color of any law to willfully deprive a person of a right or privilege protected by the Constitution of the United States.
